“ Karen, Jim & family, Kevin, Kathy & family, Kelly, Carla & family we share your grief at the passing of your mother. There is nothing that can replace the unconditional love of a mother.

David, Linda, Robbie, Cary & Tammy. We share your grief at the loss of your wonderful sister. She was one in a million.

With our deepest sympathy at this sad time. Myron & Madeline Kukla

I would like to share the fine qualities of my sister, Sharon Lynn Pitts Konstantinos possessed. I dropped the "in-law" part years ago, because she was a sister to me. I don't remember life without Sharon because I was just 3 when she & my brother Joe married.

Sharon was easy to love because there were so many things to love about her. She had a wicked sense of humor, a wonderful smile & laugh, a zest for life, a generous heart and was always kind and welcoming to everyone who entered her home. She was a wonderful mother & wife, always putting her family first. She was a terrific cook & loved trying & sharing new recipes. She was an avid reader, an activity that fueled her amazing intellect and equally amazing intellectual curiosity. She had a strong faith in God, which she demonstrated in her daily life. She truly was beautiful inside and out. In what was to be our last conversation, I shared with her that she had always reminded me of Olivia de Havilland, both in beauty and temperament, in the movie "Gone With the Wind". She thought that was hysterical, but also loved the comparison.

I loved her & have always been grateful to her for the many things she taught me through out my life. As a child it was to wash my hands and behind my ears, as a preteen it was how to dress properly, as a teen it was "there are many fish in the sea, dear one" when a short-lived teen romance went sour. When I married there were gentle lessons on the importance of give and take in a relationship. When I had children it was a helping hand with the little ones, when we were home for a visit & healthy doses of motherhood wisdom she gained by raising four children. When I entered the professional world it was her sympathetic listening ear & advice on the difficulties of juggling motherhood, managing a house, work & making sure to have quality time with one's husband. When I became a grandmother it was laughter & joy over the shared experience of being a grandparent. Of all the wonderful things about my sister Sharon, the one I treasure the most is that she loved & cherished my brother with all her heart as he did her. They had what I like to call a Great Love, what a blessing.

Rest in peace, my dear sister. May your memory be eternal. With love, Madeline
