“ From the very beginning, Aiden was thoughtful and observant. When he was little and didn't talk much, we always said it was because he had nothing to say—but when Aiden decided he did have something to say, he was a talker. His words, laughter, and presence filled the room in ways we will forever miss.

Aiden had a gentle heart and a deep love for those closest to him. He adored his dog, Cherokee, and we take comfort in believing they are together again. Most of all, Aiden loved his parents and siblings wholeheartedly. He was a devoted brother, and the bond they shared is one that will never be broken.

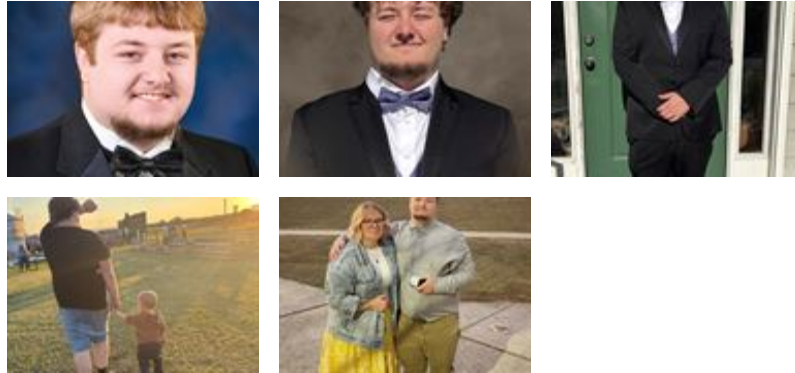

Though our hearts are broken, we stand firm in our faith. We know Aiden is now whole, and safe in the presence of Jesus. We are forever grateful for every moment God allowed us to have with him and for the love he shared so freely.

We miss you beyond words, Aiden. Until we meet again, you will always live in our hearts.

“ You have had my heart since before you were born. You wouldn't go to sleep until I got home at night to rocked you. You knew the difference between yahoo and chocolate milk. Lord help the person that tried to trick you. Everywhere we traveled we had to have Handy Mandy on a constant loop. Every day you would rearrange your train table driving pawpaw crazy.

We tried and tried to teach you to swim but you could not stand getting water in your eyes. Pawpaw put a scuba mask vest and an air tank and you thought you were a fish. You would lay on the bottom of the pool and wave. Making my heart leap out of my chest. I made you a dozen silky blankets that you drug every where. Oh how I need those days back.

Then your mom took you to a speech therapist because you refused to talk. We all had to learn sign language to communicate with you only to realize it wasn't because you couldn't talk it was because you didn't have to. All you had to do is point and we gave it to you. All my memories are so raw right now as if it was just yesterday. I keep waiting on your daily text "I love you Mawmaw ".
