Thank y'all so much. I wish there were a way to “love” these comments. Those Riverhill Days were priceless ones that we will all cherish forever. He and I laughed and cried about them as recently as this week. His memory was slipping but he remembered the times in Riverhills. He had told me a few months ago that those “Riverhills Days” were the best years of his life. Thank you for remembering him and your kind comments.

I really enjoyed Alex as a Sunday School teacher both in a couples class with Kathy and in a men's class. I remember one day in the men's class, several years after David died, that he told us he would sell himself as a slave to have just one more day with his son. I guess on Friday he started that day with more freedom than we can imagine. Looking back over my 40 years at Sweetwater I can remember many good men but Alex was among the very best. I always loved him.

Thank you for your kind words. I know there was a joyous reunion with David on Friday that we can't even imagine. He and I talked about that about a week ago because he said he had seen David and my mama as well as his parents and he was ready to go home. Again, your kind words mean so much. Thank you.
