“ Though I didn't know you personally, Brandon, I knew the depths of how much your mom, Karin, loves you so incredibly much. A love like that doesn't end in death but lasts forever. Rest In Peace and may the peace that passes all understanding be with your family as all they wait to see you again in Heaven

“ I was heartbroken when I was told of the sudden loss of Brandon. I met him one night when my youngest son, a friend of Brandon’s from NAHS, tweeted out something that gave his friends and family concern over my son’s well-being. It turned out to be a misunderstanding, but I will never forget Brandon showing up to my house to make sure that my son was found and that everything was OK. It was the first time I met him, but it made a lasting impression. I remember the sincere compassion and care I saw in Brandon’s eyes and it was deeply obvious to me that Brandon had a good, good heart and soul. I can’t imagine the hurt that comes from actually losing a child, but please know that I am praying for you and Brandon. I pray for your strength and peace and grace. God bless and keep you all!
