“ For those who knew Mrs. Caroline the world will be much sadder. I think of her every time I hear an old hymn. We loved singing together. I could begin any song either through word or humming and she seemed to know it right off the bat. I have missed our devotions and daily drives. Even the drives to the dam never grew old because we seemed to always notice something different. She was such a caring person who never seemed to meet a stranger. Her smile lit up a room when she entered and she always seemed to listen intently and be interested as others spoke, whether it was the person sitting next to her in a waiting room, or those she saw every day. She was such a ray of sunshine. When I see flower beds I think of her guidance as I pruned. Even when it was not as even as would have done she still praised. I enjoyed the recollections of life with loving husband. She just lit up! I thank God for bringing her into my life. The only time I ever saw her really apprehensive was in having to say goodbye to her home but I know that left her when she saw her Jesus. I have missed you friend but oh Caroline, one day we will again meet!
