“ Dr. Watts delivered my daughter on August 31, 1981. I had placenta previa and lost a lot of blood, Had to have transfusions of 5 pints to keep me alive. My daughter also lost blood and a little oxygen, yet Dr. Watts saved our lives and I am now 58 years old and my daughter that he saved will be 35 in August. Her name is Jazie Franks and I am eternally grateful to Dr. Watts for saving our lives. Jazie's dad was in the Navy and we were stationed in Mayport, FL and his office was not far from where we lived. My mom drove me to his office, as I was bleeding to death, and he called an ambulance and met us at the hospital and took such wonderful care of me and my daughter. My name then was Pamela Franks. I just found out today (5/2/2016) that he had passed back in 2009. My daughter sent me the obituary of his death that she found online. She remembered his name after all these years after I told her who saved us. She also is eternally grateful and is a mother herself of 4 beautiful children, 3 sons and 1 daughter. I wouldn't have those 4 beautiful grandchildren today if it wasn't for Dr. Watts. God bless you all and I pray that you are at peace knowing you will see him again in heaven someday.

“ Ed Watt was my physician for years when he practiced in Jacksonville Beach, Fl.

He helped me deal with not being able to have babies in the kindest way-- and I will be forever grateful for having his medical guidance during that period of my life.

His passing is truly a loss and his family has my complete sympathy.##imported-begin##Camilla Sims-stambaugh##imported-end##
