“ I am so glad that Ed went peacefully. I know he is in heaven with Sara and the rest of the family. I wonder if my Dad is there still giving him a hard time about the oranges!!!

My dad, Robert was one of Ed's older brothers. Dad was a great story teller and knew how to spin a tale. He always teased Ed about Christmas when Ed was a baby. Dad said they only got oranges in their stocking and Grandmother convinced the older boys how giving it would be to share their oranges so little Ed would have something to drink. Dad was constantly teasing him until one Christmas, Ed sent him a huge box of oranges from Florida and said the debt was paid. I think it shut Dad up finally (about the oranges at least)!!!

I didn't see Ed or Sara as much as I would have liked. We usually lived so many hours away. However when we were able to get together, it was great talking with them both. I was blessed to have such a wonderful aunt and uncle.

They were both community minded people who gave back to the community they lived in by volunteering at the local schools and were very active with their churches. They were wonderful people and I am very sad they are no longer part of this world but very happy that they are now in their Father's home and at peace and without pain or suffering forever.

I miss you already Ed. Much love, Debbie Smith, niece
