“ Even a mother bird felt safety and love from our sister, Frances DuVall. We visited her from Texas & surprised to see the marvel of a bird utilizing her lovely front door wreath to make a nest. See pic of wreath on outside door & on inside door, view silhouette of bird on nest from inside door. As the front door traffic opened/closed door, the bird flew a short distance, but always returned back to her nest. Soon Fran saw 5 eggs displayed & the bird continued trusting Fran to help protect them. Before long, all 5 eggs hatched & the mother bird now flew back/forth to feed her 5 little ones. Finally, the mother bird & all 5 surviving babies left the safety of their nest within Fran's front door wreath. I felt this same type protection from my "big sis" Fran during my growing-up years. My love & thanks Fran. Little sis, LoisAnn Scott Wise. .

Realistically mother birds do this constantly nesting in hanging ferns, wreaths etc..etc..Fran did not use her front door on a regular basis, she used the side door everyday for exit and entry. The mother bird knew her no different than any other fern, tree, hanging plant or wreath. You would be a great fiction story teller though making something out to be what it is in fact not. Typical response, everything is not as perfect as constantly portayed. Now tell the real story.....

Naomi Faye Scott LaMaster here.....Yes, This is Scott Island ..I am the 9th child and daughter of the 14 children born to our parents, John Scott and Naomi Ann Clay Stanley . Their children prior to myself were born on Scott Island ...shown above...River became too dangerous to transport children over to mainland in order to go to school ..So a beautiful home was constructed directly across the Kanawha to the mainland...where our Scott Homeplace continues to stand proudly even today..It is maintained by the Scott Family and used as a haven for Family visiting from out of state.
