“ My favorite memory of Uncle Lou is his humor. He lived in SC and we lived in FL so visits were few but whenever we were around he was trying to make us laugh. My clearest memory is one where I was eating a sandwich with Pam and Pam didn't want to eat the crust and he looked at us and told us that if we ate the crust - our hair would be curly. As a little girl, I believed him and believe it or not my hair is very curly today.

I know that along with his humor, he was also a unflappable man of commitment. Commitment to his family, job and God. His family and friends are going to miss him but I believe his legacy will live on for a long time. Which is a great example of how we should live our lives - making a legacy that counts. - DeeDee Mathes

“ After hearing the sad news that uncle Lou had passed, I found myself reflecting on the brief times I remember spending with him. All those years ago when assigned to a Georgia Army post for training, I remember Lou inviting me to spend the weekends with him and Aunt Lillian whenever I got a pass. Recalling those memories caused me to realize the number of gifts he gave me. Uncle Lou (and aunt Lillian) always made me feel comfortable when I visited, which was his gift of hospitality. The time we spent in his workshop gave me the gift and desire to tinker. His attention to me, a great nephew who really never spent much time with him away from family get togethers during some holidays, gave me the gift of kindness. I remember each time I visited that he always found a way to say he was proud of me, which gave me the gift of self worth.

When I think about uncle Lou, I remember an honest man who loved his family....no matter how many miles separated them. I remember all the fun talks. The early weekend morning coffees. While he will be sorely missed, I know Uncle Lou was the kind of man who made his mark in the lives of the ones he cared about. He touched my life in brief but significant ways. I'm confident there are scores of others with their own stories about the kind of man he was. I'm proud to have known uncle Lou.

“ I've known the LeDou family for too many years to count. When I was younger, Mr. LeDou and his wife were always at church with a smile on their face and a hug. He knew how to make you feel welcome. May God grant y'all, Mrs. LeDou and Pam, continued strength and give you His peace.

Love,
