“ He will always be Starfish to me. My brother from another mother. He took me under his wing when I went to work at Vogtle Nuclear Power Plant and I learned to quickly do it the Staffish way because it was always a smarter way to do it. He never met anyone that wasn't a potential friend and proved it by being the best friend you could ever want to have. Starfish didn't die from being sick, he just sed up every bit of light he had loving and doing for people. And when his light went out then that day the world became a little darker. I will remember you always my brother and love you even longer. May God comfort his family as only He can.
